MESTEAD ASSOCIATION!

OF

lication for ONE HUNDRED SHARES was made

have been taken.
following extract from the Oregonian and Bulle-convey a good idea of the plan and workings of sociation, the location of the land, etc., etc.:

IVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

s association of whose organization we gave count a few days since, is now ready to dis-f shares. As it is with one exception, (the and Homestead Association,) the pioneer oration of that kind in this city, it may be nough to state what are its purposes, and anner in which it is proposed to conduct its tions. The purposes of these Homestead iations are not at all speculative in the ory sense of the word. They are dependent e profits of their investment upon the natu-dvance in the value of their lands, conse-upon the co-operation of many individuals reholders—and the advance on values of all oding lands by reason of the expansion of ation and demand for room outside of, but near, the city. The Riverside Homestead iation has a fraction over one hundred and y acres of land situated just south of klyn on the east side of the river, the nearundary line being about one mile from the landing at East Portland. The tract lies strip along the Wallamet river, half a mile gth, and another strip along the Oregon and ornia railroad, half a mile in length, the two being connected near the middle by two of blocks (with a street between them,) the forming a figure not unlike the letter H, divided into 74 blocks, 200 feet square (with s running at right angles) and 80 fractional ts, along the river front. The shares num-00, worth $60 per share. It will be seen that re thus represents nearly a lot with an undiinterest in the 80 fractional lots. The 80 frac-l shares are to be sold off at the proper time he benefit of the Association, shareholders g in for the proceeds in proportion to the ber of shares held. When all shares are and the Association shall desire to do it, the choice of lots and blocks be put up at auction to the high-r, the proceeds of such sales, after deducting original price of shares or lots, to be divily among the whole number of sha-
, if a person wants a particular lot or block, s willing to pay $100 or $800 premium (more s as the case may be) he pays it and takes ot or block as his individual property, the ium being divided among the whole number areholders. It will be seen, therefore, that ything is co-operative, and all interests mu-
. No man can make a dollar out of it with-lso making a dollar for every other equal holder. There is no chance for loss, unless roperty, by some chance, should depreciate elow the first actual cost. Whether this is to happen in the case of this particular of land must be judged by each for himself, onsidering the steady and unprecedented ade on real estate in this city and neighbor-, and at East Portland and vicinity, for the year or two, it seems hardly possible for r to go back.
the Riverside Association all proper precauto have been taken to guard against spolies of shares. No person is allowed to more than the number of shares representing blocks, or twenty-four lots, and votes in ning the operations of the Association are cted in the same manner. The buyers of s may pay down $60 per share, which will pt them from all assessments, or they may 15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per , payable with the first installment, being in this latter case to another (and only one ) assessment of $3 per share. Upon the ount of the shares in full, with the assessments ove, the holder is entitled to his certificate his proportion of all the profits accrued from urces. No officer of the Association receives pay for services except the Secretary, who $25 per month; so it will be seen that the nses must be light.
at part of the tract lying along the river is h plateau, nearly level, about 60 to 90 feet
e the water. There is no part of the front of blocks but commands a splendid view of and and the river for miles up and down
m. That part of the tract lying along the oad is, every foot of it, of the richest loam nd adapted to gardening purposes. A beau-little stream of pure water runs through at the entire length of this wing of the tract, ding the means of irrigation, and power suft to supply pure water to every part of the tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional the entire tract. Under all these advan-
, it would seem impossible that there should y chance of loss to shareholders. Within a each shareholder, if he choose, may get a ot title to as many lots as his shares may sent, or he may continue his interest, under
, with the Association while the organiza-
may exist.—Oregonian.

HE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

have been led to make these remarks from the
at the subject of making homesteads on the out-of this city and East Portland, is being thoroughly sed here among all classes, and one homestead—the rside," just south of East Portland—has already established. The site selected is a tract of land ly-little over a mile south of the ferry landing. It is d like the letter H, one side of which, a half mile gth, borders on the river.
m this portion of the homestead, which is elevated trifle above the other prong of the H, but is still r fifty feet above the river, can be had an exten-iew of Portland, East Portland, the shipping, and Wallamette river for several miles. The land is very
, and is partly covered with light fir timber. A of land just wide enough for two rows of blocks, n avenue between them, connects the west prong
H (which has already been described) with that o
st. This last tract of land is in a beautiful little
, which is now under a high state of cultivation.
gh its whole length runs a trout brook, the water ich is clear as crystal. With a hydraulic ram the asiation proposes to have water conveyed the to every portion of the homestead.—Daily Bulletin.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EASTERN DATES TO NOVEMBER 4.

Bismarck Wants Peace.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Bismarck is unwilling to let the war continue till winter. He fears popular outbreaks. News from Caly (?) is to the same effect.

An Armistice Probable.

VERSAILLES, Nov. 3.—In consequence of the terms proposed yesterday by Thiers and accepted to-day by Bismarck, the latter offers to the French an armistice of 25 days to allow general elections to be held throughout France. The armistice to be based on military statu in quo existing on day of signing.

The Armistice.

TOULON, Nov. 3.—A dispatch received to-day by Lanaur, from Tours, says an armistice will probably be signed to-day on the basis proposed by Granville, namely: for a consistent Assembly to be called for the 25th inst. The Tours delegation do not approve of an armistice, believing it will be a sure preliminary of peace.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The conclusion of the armistice was first received by Rothschild. Great joy is manifested and hopes are entertained that ultimate peace will be the result. The conditions of the armistice are the same as proposed by Granville. The Constituent Assembly is to meet November 15th. The exchange of signatures ratifying the armistice took place yesterday.

The Armistice.

TOURS, Nov. 4.—The conditions of the armistice are the following: During 20 days the inhabitants to be at liberty to bring in food during the interval; free elections to be held in all departments.

The Paris Government owing to events that took place lately resolved to consult the people of Paris as to the maintenance of authority conferred upon it. The election was to take place to-day. It is not known here whether an armistice has been concluded.

Trouble at Marseilles.

TOURS, Nov. 3.—From Marseilles very unfavorable reports are received in regard to the conduct of the people. Some excesses had been committed, and it is said the newly appointed administrator was shot at on the occasion of his reception.

The Bombardment of New Brisach

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The bombardment of New Brisach is carried on by three batteries near Biesheim and Walfigansen. Fort Moitre is assailed by three batteries near New Brisach.

A correspondent at Berlin telegraphs on the 2d inst., that the first army under Manteuffel, will go north and occupy Normandy, Picardy and Brittany, maintaining connection with the fourth army under the Saxon Crown Prince, and will undertake the reduction of Verdun and Messieres. The 7th corps will remain to garrison Metz and reduce Thionville. The 2d army corps will proceed to Paris and go south, establishing connections on the left with Werder, and on the right with Von Derton.

From Paris.

TOURS, Nov. 3.—Journals publish extracts from the Journal Officiel of Paris of the 1st inst., from which it is understood that the Paris government has decided to accept armistice. Flourens wanted a pretext to raise a temporary riot. The hotel Deville was invaded and the Committee of Public Safety proclaimed members of the Provisional Government. They were detained several hours. About 8 o'clock Trochu, Arago and Ferry were forced from the hands of the rioters by a battalion of the National Guards. Favre and others are still held prisoners. It was not until 3 o'clock in the forenoon that these acts were repressed by the influence of some battalions of the Guard who ran up in great numbers and took a position around the hotel Deville, headed by Ferry.

Napoleon's Pamphlet.

TOURS, Nov. 3.—The Figaro of to-day publishes a version of Napoleon's pamphlet on the campaign of 1870, and the causes which led to capitulation at Sedan. He says his plan was to place one hundred and fifty thousand men at Metz, one hundred thousand at Strasburg, fifty thousand at Chalons, and cross the Rhine near Hagenau with a large force, in order to separate Southern Germany from the Northern Confederation. He hoped first to win a great battle and secure the alliance of Austria and Italy with France in imposing neutrality to Bavaria, Baden and Wurtemburg. Defects of the French military system, and delay in bringing up men and material, defeated the plan.

The Paris Opinione Nationale of the 29th, contains a summons addressed to King William and Prince Frederick Charles, to appear personally or by proxy before the tribunal of Free Masons in Paris, to answer to the charge of perjury. Their case is to be adjudged by default should they not appear. The document is duly signed by the officers of the Grand Lodge of Paris.

Conflicting Rumors.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—No confirmation is received of the reports that an armistice is definitely concluded. The rumor in circulation this morning received contradiction in the evening. Conflicting reports caused commotion in the Stock Exchange. All kinds of securities, including American, fluctuated violently.

French iron clads are cruising off Dover and Tyne.

General Changarnier has arrived at Brussels.

Miscellaneous.

TOURS, Nov. 2.—Thiers was at Paris on the 30th.

Except the Reveille and Combat, all newspapers favor the proposed armistice.

On the 31st all Government officers were detained as prisoners by the National Guards for some hours. Arago and Ferry were the first released, and soon afterwards Jules Favre. When order was restored, it was found that Communists and adversaries of an armistice, were the authors of the troubles. Trochu immediately issued a proclamation, showing the advantage of an armistice.

On the 1st of November Paris was entirely tranquil. The result of the vote as to whether Paris would accept the Provisional Government, is unknown. Nationals are forbidden to appear in the streets in armed groups.

The Standard's Paris correspondent of this morning says that twenty-five days armistice is granted by Prussia for elections. Revictualling of Paris is included. The same authority says the populace of Tours rose yesterday, captured Government and proclaimed a Committee of Safety, but the officers were soon rescued and order restored by the National Guard.

Sharp Fighting.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Queen Augusta's regiment of the Prussian guard stormed Lebonget on the 30 ult taking 30 officers and 1,280 men. Col. Walderse was killed and 25 officers and 400 men on the German side placed hors du combat.

An Armistice Concluded

LONDON, Nov. 3.—An armistice has been concluded.

A dispatch from Wilhelmshohe states that Empress Eugenie has gone to Hanover to inspect Renhousen, the palace of the late Ex King of Hanover, for Napoleon, who is still suffering from cold and damp at Wilhelmshohe.

More about Bazaine.

TOURS, Nov. 3.—The Moniteur presents a long report made by Valitone, an official who escaped from Metz, charging Marshal Bazaine with treachery. It says Bazaine remains master of the political situation in France.

A complete history is given of the campaign under Bazaine, in course of which it is shown that the Marshal opposed all proposals for general sorties from Fortress.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The Standard's Paris correspondent says Bourbaki has not resigned nor been relieved.

By Monday next the entire National Guards will be supplied with chassepots.

The Standard is confident that that an armistice for twenty-five days has been arranged between France and Prussia.

The Constituent Assembly is to meet on the 15th.

The siege of Belfort has commenced.

Mobiles from the Rhone bravely defended Roppeo, and finally succeeded in repulsing the enemy.

Lyons is well provisioned for the impending siege. All within the fortifications have agreed to defend the place to the last extremity.

Advices from New Breisach are received to the 23d. Fort Mortimer had been fired, and at three o'clock in the afternoon was burning fiercely.

BERNE, Nov. 4.—The Nationals and Mobiles were routed by the Prussians on Tuesday near Thurne.

In consequence of firing heard so near the borders of Germany, Swiss troops are concentrating on the frontier.

Dispatch from Berlin.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—The capture of Dijones in is confirmed by official dispatch from Gen. Werder. A large part of the town was burned by the bombardment. The First Prussian Grenadiers lost 200 men killed in the engagement and the Second Grenadiers 500. The French loss is unknown, but believed to be heavy.

Dispatches via London.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The National Guards and Mobiles will again refuse to fight under Garibaldi who is organizing Franc Tireurs.

Late advices from Paris give particulars of the disturbances which occurred from the adversaries of an armistice. They made armed manifestations before the Hotel De Ville. A committee of public safety was established by the rioters comprising Ledru Rollin, Hugo, Gustave Fleurens and other well known names. Members of the Government were detained as prisoners for several hours, but were at length released by soldiers of the National Guardes, who also put down the manifestations.

Paris will vote on Thursday next if the powers of the Government be maintained. A Mayor will be elected for every arrondissement.

During the disturbances yesterday Trochu was threatened by the mob, and muskets were pointed at him, but his firmness disarmed the rioters

The Paris journals all contain articles urging the Government to take energetic measures.

The news of the capitulation of Metz caused a great sensation at Paris, but there was no discouragement among the troops.

The position at Bourget has been captured by by the French. It was abandoned on the 28th ult, as lacking strategetical value.

EASTERN STATES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The non-arrival of Williams & Guyon's steamer Idaho, now 15 days out from Liverpool, for this port, suggests the most dreadful fears of possible disaster to the vessel. Among her passengers were fifty French Canadians, a portion of the lately disbanded Papal army, and represents the majority of them as the best Canadian families.

Steamer Lost.

LAKE CITY, Florida, Nov. 4.—The steamer Varuna, Capt. Joseph Spencer, from New York the 15th for Galveston, foundered on the night of the 20th, off Quasiter Inlet, Fla. All on board except the second mate and four men were lost.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—The Captain of the fishing brig Menshikoff reports that the whaling vessel Elmira and Hibernia were totally destroyed by ice about the 13th of August, together with 600 barrels of oil. No lives lost.

A young lady who resides in Sacramento and occupies a respectable position, attempted to draw $100 on a lottery ticket, the number of which had been very skillfully altered by pasting. The fraud was promptly refused, and she became greatly agitated, stating that she did it for a friend and was herself imposed upon.

The outbreak of typhus fever in the Industrial School by which three boys have died and several more dangerously ill will be specially investigated. It is believed there is a local cause for it.

William Brown, a laborer on Laguna street, was found dead this morning, having fallen on his neck.

A fraud by which a leading bank has been victimized has been discovered. Steps were taken to arrest a forger, who it is believed will be captured within the next 48 hours. Details and names are withheld from prudential motives at present.

Slight showers are falling this evening.

Railroad Collision—One man Killed.

EMIGRANT GAP, Nov. 4.—Last night about one o'clock, two freight trains on the Central Pacific railroad, in trying to pass each other on a single track, about a mile west of Blue Canyon, collided, killing S. Parks, of Sacramento, and badly injuring R. Kem, S. Hennessy and H. Taylor. The engines were badly broken up.

NEVADA.

VIRGINIA, Nov. 4.—Lieut. Gov. Slingerland is recovering from his late severe illness, but is not able to leave his room.

F. A. Tritle, Republican candidate for Governor, returned yesterday from a trip to the eastern part of the State.

The shooting scrape between Pat Dunn and Bill Slick was investigated this morning. Nobody to blame.

UTAH.

SALT LAKE, Nov. 4.—In the case of Englebrecht vs. Alderman Clinton et al, for the destruction of a liquor establishment, the jury to-day rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for fifty-nine thousand dollars. The case will be appealed.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—In the County Court to-day, Oliver Crooks was convicted of grand larceny and sentenced to four years in the State prison.

Of the three bystanders wounded in the shooting affray last Monday, two are improving rapidly, and the Chinaman, who was thought to be wounded beyond the possibility of recovery, is pronounced out of danger.

CORINNE, Nov. 4.—The Willard Mining Company make its first shipment of ore next week. General surprise is expressed at its richness. Owners enthusiastic.

A very wasteful and destructive sort of economy is that which inspired the French Provisional Government to order the coining of the silver plate in the palaces in Paris. The intrinsic value of the metal in ware of that description is usually but a very small per centage of its selling price, the balance representing the skill of the artisan and the genius of the designer. The French officials might as well order the use of the crown jewels for ammunition in their mitrailleurs, as to destroy millions of francs worth of plate in order to add a few thousands to the resources of their treasury. It will be remembered that during the reign of Louis XIV, Benvenuto Cellini spent some time in Paris, was permitted to use one of the halls of the Louvre and workshop, and there perfected some of his finest designs, which, executed in silver, are now doubtless to be found among the plate which this order consigns to the crucible. There are also in the collection, we believe, some almost priceless pieces designed by Inigo Jones. It is hardly extravagant to say that there must be in Paris many articles created by the genius of these artists, any one of which would sell for as much as will be realized by sending them all to the melting pot.

Jim Fisk is the living impersonation of that aspiring youth who bore the "banner with the strange device Excelsior." He is not, it is true, addicted to climbing mountains of ice, airily clad in a night-shirt and nothing else, as the artists picture Longfellow's hero. In fact he rather emulates Sardanapalus than Diogenes, in the matter of creature comforts. Nevertheless he fully subscribes to the doctrine that "it's no use bein' a feller unless you're a h— l of a feller," and is not in the habit of letting anybody go up higher or get along faster than himself. It was quite natural, therefore, that when some one mentioned to him the churches lately built by those other big guns of the stock board, Vanderbilt and Drew, his indomitable spirit should assert itself in the remark: "Well, if they run churches, I guess I can do as much, and I will build a d—d sight better church than any of them."

The widow of the late Admiral Farragut arrived in Sacramento by the train from the East, on the 27th ult, en route for Vallejo.

Los Angeles city has taxable property to the amount of $2,214,945.

The first snow storm of the season occurred in Virginia City on the 26th ult.

The Guadalupe ranch, Santa Barbara, has been sold for $447,000. The stamps on the deed amounted to $447.

The Anti Coolie Laundry Association of San Francisco has failed. Had Mooney remained, perhaps the institution might have been more successful.

Col. Amos Travis, of Los Angeles, has, within the city limits, thirty-two acres planted in vines, which this season yielded 302,000 pounds of grapes or 12,250 pounds per acre.

The relatives of Miss Mattie Ritchie, the missing school teacher of San Francisco, offer a reward of $100 for any information which will lead to her recovery, whether living or dead.

On the morning of October 25th, the Lakeport and Calistoga stage was going toward San Francisco, about half-past 4 o'clock, five miles from Lakeport and three from Kelsey's creek, when two masked men, one armed with a rifle and the other with a revolver, ordered the driver, McGreer, to hold in and hand down Wells, Fargo & Co's box, which he was compelled to do. The only passenger in the stage was a woman, and they did not disturb her. At Kesey's creek McGreer gave the alarm, and Well, Fargo & Co.'s agent, with a party of citizens fully armed, went in pursuit, with what success is not known. The amount in the box is supposed to have been small.

General Lee's Memory.

[From the New York Tribune.]

It is natural and fitting that those who fought long and well under the late Robert E. Lee, even in a cause so indefensible as human slavery, should strew flowers on his new-made grave. No generous mind will object to this. Confederate Virginia is passionately proud of her most illustrious name; why not allow her respectfully and modestly to say so? We see nothing in the honors paid to the memory of Lee by his late associates in a desperate, protracted struggle, which should incite or would justify animadversion. And, as to the sub-official who undertook to display the United States flag at half-mast on a Federal custom-house, in sympathy with the feelings of those associates, he probably knew no better, and has been sufficiently rebuked for his error.

But holding meetings in Northern cities to honor the memory of the dead leader of the Confederate hosts seems to us, to speak softly, unwise and mischievous. It tends to revive recollections that are happily fading from the general mind, and to inflame differences that were better wholly effaced and forgotten. No one need be told that Gen. Lee's private life was exemplary, nor that those who knew him best esteemed him living and honor him dead as a man and a Christian. The public cannot help understanding that the honors here paid to his memory would never have been proffered had he closed his career as he began it—a loyal, faithful soldier of the Union. Is it well to incite such reflections? With great respect for the attitude and bearing of Gen. Lee ever since as well as prior to his Confederate career, we think not.

At all events, be careful that truth is not flouted in doing honor to the memory of one whose treason has cost our country at least a billion of national debt and the lives of one hundred thousand of her noblest sons.

A writer in The Age (Philadelphia), who seems to be Gen. Cadwallader, after an emphatic but not indiscriminate laudation of Gen. Lee's military genius, says:

"It is not our aim to-day to criticise, nor to broach political questions, but to pay our tribute of respect and honor to a great man, who fought fairly and nobly on the side he took, sincerely believing it to be, according to his light, the side to which patriotism and honor summoned him. There are too many men in the world who wilfully go wrong from base and venal and selfish motives. Let us be charitable to the brave and good, who, if they err, err because human judgment is fallible, the circumstances of their position difficult, and the path of duty, which they wish to follow, is not, to their eyes, clearly described."

Now, we will not say that Gen. Lee did not feel obliged to obey the call of Virginia in preference to that of the Union; but we do surely know, from his own unequivocal testimony, that he did not believe that Virginia or her Southern sisters had adequate reason for resisting and seeking to subvert the authority of that Union. He obeyed her summons, because he thought she had a paramount claim to his allegiance, and not because he deemed her constrained by intolerable wrongs to break away from that Union, to which he owed so much. He said this (in substance) in a letter to his sister, long since published.

Gen. Lee was educated for a soldier at the expense, not of Virginia, but the Union. He could not have been so educated without taking a stringent oath of unqualified fidelity to that Union—an oath of perpetual obligation. Had he presented himself at West Point, and said when the oath was tendered, "I take this with the distinct understanding that, if Virginia shall ever call me to fight against the Union, I shall hold myself not only at liberty but under obligation to do so," his proffer must have been rejected and he turned away uninstructed. But he took the oath as it was propounded, without avowed reservation, and afterward, as official head of the Military Academy, administered, or caused to be administered, to others. That he should have felt constrained thereafter, in defiance of his own conviction that she should not have seceded, to follow Virginia into the bloody abyss of secession and treason, seems to us a mournful instance of human imperfection and frailty, which no loyal soldier of the Union which Gen. Cadwallader, we presume, claims to be, should have brought into public view without deeply lamenting if not pointedly reproving it.

WHOLESALE POISONING.—The following account of successful poisoning by wholesale is related by the San Leandro Gazette (Cal.) of October 27th

The San Jose Mercury recommends the use of poison to get rid of gophers, and states that a gentleman whose farm was completely burrowed by gopher holes "demolished the entire lot" by placing in their holes small pieces of watermelon impregnated with strychnia. We happen to be posted on this point. Our usually serene and equitable temper was once completely soured by the persistent annoyance of a delegation of old hens which visited our garden every day, and went for big cucumbers, ripe tomatoes, and tempting watermelons, with a vicious assiduity that finally aroused the sleeping lion of our nature. We put up a neat job on the poultry. Procuring some strychnine, we scientifically doctored a big watermelon, cut it up into delicious looking discs, placed the bait at the back door, and then sat down to our dinner with a pious satisfaction at the good work we had begun that gave our hash a relish such as none but the good can know. What was our astonishment and horror, however, on going out a short time afterward to see if the hens had been around, to find our poor "office devil" rolling about on the ground in the most intense agony, and ejecting "watermillion" seeds and pulp at a rate to which the exploits of the famous mitrailleuse of the French are as nothing! The unhappy wretch recovered, however, in spite of combined effects of the "cold pison" and the doctor's treatment. It took the bulk of our income for a month to pay the bill presented by that functionary. We don't go a cent on poisoning melons.

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING NOVEMBER [illegible] 1870

The Job of the Executive Ring

A new method has been discovered by the Herald of justifying the seizure of the school lands by a hungry corporation. That paper argues that the seizure was [illegible] and justifiable because the Governor [illegible] inaugural address [illegible]. Now this is indeed [illegible]. It is perfectly overwhelming. The Executive who is a party to the robbery recommended it to the Legislature, therefore the transaction is every way proper and right. Such logic shows the resources of the Herald. But it will hardly satisfy people who do not accept the doctrine of gubernatorial infallibility in a job which his Excellency himself has assisted in putting up at the command of the schemers who move him to accomplish their purposes.

It pleases those who discuss this subject in the interest of the plunderers of the school fund to disregard entirely the analogous precedent of the Iowa case in which Congress declared that by its [illegible] respecting the 500,000 acres of land which the people of that State had requested through their Constitution should go to the school fund it had acceded to their request and that the Constitution of the State was therefore the authority as to the disposition to be made of the lands. This is exactly the case with the 500,000 acres donated to the State of Oregon. And that Congress will so declare when the subject is brought before it as we trust and believe it will be without delay there can be no doubt. The Senators from this State owe it to the people, and to the educational interests of the present and future generations, to take steps at once to prevent the consummation of this swindling transaction. And we trust they will attend to it promptly.

The Herald also urges that because the lock bill stipulates that ten per cent of the net profits of the company receiving this subsidy shall be paid into the school fund "it is the opinion of many that the school fund will be enhanced even more by this provision than by the sale of the lands." Here is verdancy indeed. The person who supposes that the company will ever show any "net profits" while this requirement exists is little superior in intelligence and penetration to an idiot. The company's books will not show a hundred dollars net profits in a hundred years. The enterprise may yield a considerable amount of actual profits but the company will find ways enough of disposing of them for the advantage of its members, without paying ten per cent of them into the school fund. All they will have to do will be simply to share the whole profits among themselves and call the transaction a payment of officers' salaries, and the school fund will receive nothing. Can any person, not a shallow simpleton, suppose that this company, or any other company, would disgorge a portion of its earnings or profits unless it were compelled to do so? Of course nobody but an editor of the Herald would imagine any such thing.

Right here another striking and odious feature of this swindle presents itself. A responsible company offered to construct the locks for a subsidy less by $75,000 than that given to this gang who control the Governor and to pay into the school fund ten per cent of the gross earnings of the enterprise. Here was an opportunity first, to save $75,000, and second, to secure a large and certain revenue for the benefit of the fund for common schools. The Republican members of the Legislature seeing that the bill was destined to pass in some shape, contended strenuously for these propositions to secure better terms for the State but their efforts were without avail. The ring had decreed that the scheme should go through—they had set it up in their own interest and were resolved to have the spoil. And so the scheme was consummated.

It behooves the people to see that when another Legislature is elected such an one shall be chosen as this ring cannot control. Otherwise the jobbery that has so far been perpetrated will be as nothing compared with what we shall see hereafter.

The War Coming to a Close

The dispatches which we publish this morning leave no doubt that an armistice has been signed by representatives of the contending powers in Europe. This is well both for France and Germany. France cannot hope to reverse the fortunes of the war which have run so strongly against her nor could Germany hope, if the war were prolonged further, to gain more by the peace than she can gain now. Unquestionably Germany is entitled to demand indemnity and security, and France must yield to the demand. The French people will see that it is useless to continue the struggle, and it may be considered very certain that, at the time fixed for the armistice to expire hostilities will not be resumed. The war is virtually over.

The Democratic paper at Oregon City somewhat more unscrupulous than the organ here attempts to defend the State Printer against the censures of the Legislative Committee, who charged him with gross frauds. It says that the gross frauds must have been perpetrated by former State Printers and intimates that the committee could not have intended to make this charge against the proprietor of the State organ. Happy explanation. But the Committee spoke in direct terms of gross frauds committed in doing the printing of the present session. The Herald is forced to own this though its colaborer at Oregon City has the brass to deny it.

The Oregon City Enterprise says that a majority of the Republican members of the Legislature voted for the lock swindle. This is an unblushing falsehood. The measure was steadily opposed by the Republican and by some of the Democratic members and it was necessary to throw out the Republican delegations from Benton and Yamhill counties in order to pass the bill.

The population of Michigan is 1,101,401, an increase in ten years of 442,348. The three States of Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa were about equal in population in 1860 and have increased in about the same ratio since that year. But ten years hence Iowa will be ahead.

A correspondent at Bozeman, Montana, tells of a new wrinkle in feeding silk worms which may be interesting to persons engaged in silk culture. He says that lettuce leaves make an excellent substitute for the leaves of the mulberry tree, that he has raised good silk exclusively by such feeding. All that is necessary is to be sure that the leaves are dry. It is not worth while to dress the lettuce in the hope of raising dressed silk, as the worms do not like condiments and there is no disputing with them in the matter of taste.

OREGON

A daughter of Capt. Miller and Mrs H. S. Buck, both residing at Oregon City, each drew a $100 prize in the library lottery.

Matters at the Salem depot says the Statesman wear a very lively aspect. Several buildings are erected there and construction or business trains are constantly coming or going. A quantity of telegraph wire is on hand said to be enough to reach the first one hundred miles. The grave [illegible] will be made to [illegible] duty for a considerable while and [illegible] as the [illegible] out [illegible].

From the [illegible] City Enterprise: We [illegible] on an island [illegible] below [illegible] a large hut which very much resembles the one that stood on the island discovered by some of our enterprising citizens in the basin of the P. T. Company. Some of the knowing ones think it has been taken up by the same parties with a view of stopping the boats from running by it. This seems very probable as there is a large dam where the water passes on one side of it.

From the Salem Statesman of Friday: The construction train which has been employed loading gravel at the Molalla and ballasting the road has way completed the work to a short distance this side of Waconda last week and has come up and commenced a gravel pit just above the depot here and it is ballasting the road from Salem north. It will require nearly the remainder of this month to complete the gravelling of the ten miles of unfinished road lying between Salem and Waconda and when that is done Oregon will have fifty miles of as good road as is often found.

THE TERRITORIES

The Alaska Times is now issued regularly at Seattle W. T., to which place it was removed some time ago. It presents a good appearance and seems to be doing well.

The Helena (Montana) Gazette says an enterprise is on foot to bring a large canal out of the Missouri river furnishing water to several hundred thousand acres of farming lands.

Over at the Sound people are still rushing after the terminus as after a gold excitement. One day the stampede is in one direction the next day in another. It's a harrowing state of uncertainty.

A report of a new discovery of gold in a remote part of Montana 200 miles from anywhere is rife in that Territory and parties are stampeding by hundreds in the teeth of winter and without supplies, to be first on the ground.

Twenty two fishing vessels have arrived at San Francisco and Port Townsend this season bringing an aggregate of 1,356,000 codfish. The Legal Tender had the largest catch, the Alaska of Port Townsend next, the Constitution the smallest.

A Seabeck correspondent of the Port Townsend Message reports the foundering of the plunger Wild Irish Girl near that place and the drowning of a man named Wm Gardner the only person on board. The disaster occurred on the night of the 25th ult during a heavy gale.

From the Olympia Tribune: "The summit of the Olympic range is now covered with snow. This is quite unusual at this season of the year, and is considered by old settlers as an indication of a severe winter. We generally have a pretty hard winter once in ten years, and it is about time to expect severe cold."

An Olympia paper has this: A few days ago a German farmer near Claquato visited Olympia accompanied by his daughter, a fine healthy girl in her teens. To save trouble in procuring accommodations for the daughter he had her attired in the garb of a brother about the same height. Stopping over night on the way, as he he anticipated and where there was no spare bed the daughter was compelled to share the couch of a young man to whom she was a stranger. In the morning the pair resumed their journey their late hosts remaining in ignorance of the sex of the daughter—at least so says the old man. Guess this story is a hoax.

The Puget Sound Woolen Manufacturing Company's factory is situated on Chambers creek four miles northwest of Steilacoom. It is a substantial frame building, fifty feet wide by eighty two in length and five stories high—the three main stories being twelve feet in the clear, and the attic stories nine feet. The cost of the improvements thus far has been for factory and boarding house, $15,000; dam and flume $1,400; roads and clearing site, $1,000; machinery in mill $8,000; dye stuffs, oil and supplies, $1,000; the remainder of the machinery is on the wharf at Steilacoom upon which there is due the sum of $4,000. This, with about $3,000 to set the machinery in motion, will prepare the factory for operation.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Victorians are supplied with beef from Yakima, W. T.

The municipal election at Victoria will occur on the 8th inst.

William Shakespeare has turned up at Victoria where he has had the ill luck to get into jail for selling whisky to Indians.

Oysters are now shipped from Vancouver's Island to Olympia. Formerly oysters were shipped from Olympia to Victoria.

There is a general quarrel among the people of British Columbia about the terminus of the Canadian railway just as if the question were of any interest to the present generation of British Columbians.

A meeting of prominent citizens of Victoria has been held to take into consideration the necessity of a railway from Victoria to Nanaimo to connect with the Trans Continental Railway to Canada. The meeting is about twenty years ahead of any railroad.

At about 3 o'clock in the morning of the 16th of October Mr Nicholas Coke was found dead in bed in his house at Plumper Pass. The deceased for some time past had been in ill health. On the day previous to his death he was working in his field digging potatoes but when he retired to bed complained of illness. His wife, an Indian woman, finding that after a good deal of restlessness he suddenly became quiet grew alarmed and called in a neighbor who when he came to the bed, found that life was extinct.

RELIGIOUS ITEMS

From 1860 to 1870 85,000 copies of the New Testament have been circulated in Russia. The National Church interposes no objection.

The Western [illegible] Reflector says that some time ago a Congregational church in Long Island went over to the Baptists almost in a body and that now another case precisely similar is about to occur.

Dr H. M. Scudder is called the Beecher of the Pacific Coast. His church, a large one, is packed aisles and all every service, rain or shine. He is one of eight sons of the missionary Scudder who all succeeded him in his work in Arcot, India, where the family now carries on the mission.

A Springfield man who has been visiting in the eastern part of Berkshire, Mass., reports a pastor who rings the bell to call the people to service, pitches the tune and helps sing and the singing is [illegible] in addition to preaching to the living he stands ready to dig the graves of those who die and all for a salary of $[illegible].

In 1869 Pittsburg contained 20 bottle and vial factories, 14 window factories and 29 flint glass factories—in all 63. In addition to these there are a number of glass factories whose exclusive production consists of lamp chimneys. The aggregate value of the productions of these factories is said to be nearly $7,000,000 annually or about half of the total value of all the glass manufactured in the country.

The Baptists began work in 1814 among the slaves of Jamaica but, owing to the opposition of the planters made little progress until the slave insurrection of 1831-2. In 1832 24 churches had been formed under 14 missionaries. Now there are 97 churches with 22,000 members and 37 ministers of whom 20 are colored, educated at the institution of Calabar. It is found very difficult to secure pastors of proper qualifications as the population from which they must come is so ignorant.

POLITICAL NOTES

When the proposition was in Congress [illegible] to relieve the food of the poor man from taxation the free traders voted solidly against it and declared that tea, sugar and coffee should continue to pay a heavy duty.

Referring to the law of Congress to secure the purity of the ballot box the New York Times says: all citizens whether Democratic or Republican will have nothing to fear from the United States Marshal on election day. They may go to the polls with a confidence they have not known for years. The only persons whose plans will be frustrated are the roughs and repeaters who in other days have been masters of the [illegible]. For once they will find the law too strong for them. The World may rave at the prospect but every respectable citizen will rejoice.

Hon T. Howe, Senator in Congress from Wisconsin, appears in the Milwaukee Sentinel of October 8th in a reply to the article of Henry Brooks Adams in the North American Quarterly Review of July last headed "The Session," which is an elaborate assault upon the Republican party of the United States. The rejoinder of Senator Howe occupies more than six columns of the Sentinel and is characteristically caustic and thorough. It is a little strange that the descendants of John Adams and John Quincy Adams are all more or less in sympathy with the modern pro-slavery interest and that the grandson of the second President of the United States, Charles Francis Adams, should himself be quoted on the same side while his sons are among the accepted champions of what is left of the Democratic party.

The Philadelphia Press of October 1st has the following from its Washington correspondent:

It seems to be conceded that Chief Justice Chase no longer desires to participate in public affairs. Being a man of taste and fortune he will probably retire from the bench of the Supreme Court at no distant day and following the example of Governor [illegible] travel in Europe and around the world for the benefit of his health. In this event it becomes an important question as to who will succeed the Chief Justice on the Supreme bench. Rumor is already busy with the names of several prominent jurists among them Mr Justice Strong of Pennsylvania. This position has been coveted and filled by some of the most eminent statesmen and jurists of the country and ought to be filled by a first class man. Who shall it be is the question occupying the minds of those who have come to the conclusion that Chief Justice Chase is about to retire.

CURRENT NOTES

The indications are that the reduction in the number of Assistant Assessors of Internal Revenue will reach 500 or over 25 per cent—a saving of nearly $600,000 annually.

Twelve U. S. Senators have engaged to write articles for the New York Ledger. Senator Cameron is one of the twelve and will contribute an article on the "Material Resources of Pennsylvania."

Mr Locksmith attended a festival gathering at a hurdy gurdy house in White Pine, Nevada, and remarked that he could whip any d—d thief in the house. Immediately after which he fell dead from heart disease. Mr Locksmith was dragged into a corner and the dance went on.

The city of New Orleans has fished up the will of one Stephen Henderson, made in 1837, which gives to the poor of that city $2,000 per annum and bequeathes large sums to various charitable institutions. These bequests have never been paid, and the city is legally after the heirs for a settlement.

Something has just occurred in Boston which may be the means of making druggists and druggists' clerks more careful than heretofore judging from the alarming number of deaths and injuries from druggists' mistakes. A gentleman has recovered in the Supreme Court the sum of $639 as damages for negligence on the part of a druggist in putting up a prescription which caused the death of plaintiff's son.

"The Pet of the Pagans"

The following article is from the Oregon City Enterprise. We transfer it to our columns in order to show people who otherwise never would see it, a specimen of the dense stolidity of some who advocate Democratic principles and also to give Mr Dorris and other intelligent members of the party an opportunity to hear how a sound Democrat talks. We quote:

Hon J. D. Fay introduced a bill in the Senate taxing all foreigners who were not naturalized or had not declared their intention to become citizens. This bill was intended to reach the Chinamen, and had no aim at white foreigners. But the outrageous Burlingame treaty prohibits any discrimination and hence it was thought best by the author of the bill to include all foreigners which was believed would stand the legal test. The bill passed the Senate, and when it came to the House, it was amended so as not to apply to persons who had not been in the State one year. It was argued by the opposition that this bill could not apply to the Chinamen because they could not make their declaration to become citizens. This very reason is an argument in favor of the bill applying to the Chinese alone as all other nationalities could and would become citizens. The bill was defeated by one vote and the honor (?) of its defeat is due to Hon G. B. Dorris of Lane, a Democrat, so called, whose opposition to the bill was as bitter as any Radical's in the House and is supposed to have been caused to gratify his spite against the author of the bill. The counties of Grant, Baker, Union, Jackson, Douglas and Josephine which are thus deprived of their chief source of revenue will remember this recreancy to the party and which was stultified by his vote and the best interests of the State sacrificed. The mining counties have had hard work to preserve and extend to their citizens the benefits of civilization and it is but fair that some small portions of the pagans' wages should go to educate the Christian's children and help to support a civilized government. One more Democratic vote and the bill would have received the constitutional majority and would have been of vast benefit to the mining counties. Mr Dorris will not escape the title he has so justly earned by his action on this measure—the Pet of the Pagans.

In San Francisco Oct 26th an insane man named John Glassbrook who had escaped from the Stockton Asylum was re-arrested. He says he was engaged working in the garden at the asylum and when he got tired he walked off. He thinks they are great fools for taking him back again, as he is no more crazy than they are.

LOOKING TO CALIFORNIA A STILL ... —The time was when Oregon looked to California ... in the line of goods wares and merchandise in the matter of home wants—the scale has entirely turned Oregon has been sending to California all the best quality of flour bacon lard wool fruit etc etc which is consumed in the Golden State The markets there have ... been giving to Oregon in every ... a few cents the advantage in ... There is one ... however a very ... at that which Oregon seems to have ... to California from the past few weeks ... We refer to the ... legislative Assembly It was not a very good ... of ... the ... and ... tax act etc but the California ... which originated those measures on this coast was literally Democratic and that was reason enough for the Oregon Assembly ... in order to crown its acts with something of a high order to be passed down to posterity the North Pacific wing of the blooded Democracy re-enacted the stamp tax bill of California with amendments to suit the case and thus is one of those vile odious laws about which the Democracy have been troubling themselves here so much incorporated into the statute books of Oregon It may not be amiss to call the attention of the public at this time to this valuable test of the Democracy s opposition to the odious laws of Congress By the adoption of this act the business of marine fire and life insurance companies will be crippled in the State or the large amount of money demanded by it of them in order to justify them in carrying on business here must be paid by the citizens of Oregon in addition to their already heavy drains by way of taxation imposed upon them by the late model Legislature This late assessment upon the public we presume was necessary in order that the deficits made certain by the creation of numerous new offices may be met promptly

COUNTY HOSPITAL —We are glad to learn that the County Commissioners of Multnomah county have employed Dr W H Watkins as Hospital Physician and made very many alterations in the management of the County Hospital The management and superintendence is now in the hands of Mr Robert Cleghorn The Hospital will hereafter be provided with bathing conveniences and many other accommodations not heretofore introduced but very necessary in an institution of this character So that hereafter inmates who may be so unfortunate as to be compelled to avail themselves of its mercy may be more fortunate than those who have regarded the place until very recently as worse than a cell for felons People who feel an interest in relieving the misfortunes of those whom the dark side of life has reduced to want can always depend that their charities in the line of sanitary stores clothing and periodicals will be thankfully received at the Hospital by the sick Each parcel will be forwarded free if left at the postoffice by kindness of Mr Wakefield There has also been provided rooms and accommodations for the care of female patients and the little orphan left alone in the world may be providentially provided for in future at the hospital for the poor and indigent in Multnomah county The poor ye always have was uttered by One whose presence no one can avoid and this poverty is a thing not always to be avoided Only yesterday a cousin of Hon Anson Burlingame was admitted within the lines of this institution Poor sick and alone a stranger in a strange land It is hoped he will find that kind of treatment here which will insure him a new lease of life and make him ever grateful for its timely assistance.

BEET SUGAR —In our comments, made about a month since concerning the erection at East Portland of sugar works we conveyed the impression, erroneously that it was to be a refinery of the coarser grades of sugar Mr A B Gross who has since been to the Atlantic States on business connected with this matter returned by the Oriflamme this week We visited his office yesterday, and from the gentlemen, themselves, who have this important branch of industrial pursuits in hand learned that the object was entirely different Their purpose is to erect a manufactory for the making of sugar from beets, watermelons, and such other genus of the vegetable kingdom as furnish at this day a very large portion of all the sugar which is manufactured in France America has also, on a great scale, in the last few years entered upon the manufacture of what is called beet sugar' Mr Gross brought with him a large variety of the grades of sugar made by this process estimates of cost plans of buildings and machinery etc which the Oregon establishment will avail themselves of in their operations The profits of the business are fully fifty per cent over all costs of manufacture and the sugar is equal to any in the market—hence the enterprise is pretty certain to prove a success Sacramento has a beet sugar manufactory In a few years Oregon will have several It is not only an aid to families but a stimulus to the farmer Won t there be some huge melon patches in Webfoot in a short time? And as regards beets let the world stand back in astonishment Farmers prepare your soil Another item is soon to be in demand

MODEL ROAD —It has been customary with many to growl at the indifferent roads in this State and in many instances we must admit with much justness but there is a highway commenced in this county that is worthy of commendation and of being patterned after We refer to that portion of the Taylor Ferry road from its junction with the Boon ferry road southward to where it comes into the old road The grading was commenced in 1860 by making a double track one of which is corduroy-laid with rails These rails are sunk in the ground about six inches and covered on top with a layer of dirt When finished, both tracks are nearly level In the summer teams can use the dirt or the cross laid track but in winter they confine themselves to the rail track Thus is the road preserved for summer use and but few repairs are needed Without doubt this double track cross laid road is the best public highway that has been built in Oregon The road is the one by which the greater part of the travel from Yamhill and Polk counties reach the metropolis, and is, therefore, very important The old road needs further changes out five or six miles from town These relocations should be made on the lower side of several hills, thus improving the grade. Steps should be taken to make these changes before another season s work is commenced

TWO SONG AND DANCE MEN

[illegible] New for October

We were [illegible] White River Junction [illegible] the seat beside me was a fat man of garrulous tendencies who had made several attempts at conversation with me, all of which I had sternly repressed, being engaged at the time in looking over some old newspapers containing my celebrated [illegible] on the agricultural resources of our country as applied to the question of a protective tariff. As I laid the last paper I was [illegible] on my lap the voice of my fat companion was again heard.

"I am the man that can tell all about those men, sir,—I made them what they are," and a large hand pointed to the column of deaths, where I read—

"At White River Junction, January 12, 1862, Thomas Knight, aged 30 years and [illegible] months."

Who Thomas Knight was I did not know, nor did I understand how by any possibilities of English grammar he could be alluded to as "those men." Accordingly I looked interrogatively at my companion.

"You know who Tom Knight was, don't you?" he asked.

"Let me see," said I, "was he one of the Knights of—"

"No," said the fat man, interrupting me with a degree of asperity that was entirely uncalled for, and an indifference to grammatical rules that was simply shocking, "he wasn't one of the Knights of no here. He was Knight of Knight & Cottle, he was. You must have known about them."

"My dear sir," I replied, "to say that I did not know about them would be to say that I had traveled through the country with my eyes shut. Why, I've seen their names on every board fence from Portland to Peoria."

"Well, sir," said the fat man again, "I made them boys what they was, and until they give up a performing I was the one to whom they naturally turned for sympathy. They was the best song and dance men in the country, and it was to me they owed their success. Them words was Knight's and likewise Cottle's also."

"What made them stop performing?" I asked. "Oh, I see," said I, "Drink."

"No, sir, you do not see," responded the fat man, warmly. "Nor was it drink. A steadier chap than Knight never stepped, unless it was Cottle, and both of 'em may be regarded as paragons. Paragons is what I should call 'em, sir, if all was left to my choice of language."

"Out with your story," said I, "for I see there is one, and that you are dying to tell it."

"Well, it ain't much of a story, sir," said the fat man, "and, moreover, when I tells a thing I always tells it rambling, but if you'd like to hear about 'em, sir, I'm ready to accommodate.

"It's a good many years ago, sir, since I run a show along the Mississippi River. We didn't locate in no one spot, sir, for no one spot would pay very long, and we couldn't stay more 'n a month in a place without getting all chawed up in fights. We did the regular minstrel business, with our headquarters, for the most part, in New Orleans. Well, one day we was to Natchez. Natchez is a pretty rough place, sir, about as bad as any place on the river, and one day there I found a little shaver about two feet high hanging around the stage-door. 'What do you want here?' says I.

"'I want to join the show,' says he.

"'What do you suppose your father and mother will say?' says I.

"'I ain't got no father nor mother to say nothing,' he answered back again, as sharp as you please.

"'What do you do for a living now?' I asks him.

"'Another variety of what you does,' says he. 'I loafs.'

"Well, sir, the long and the short of it was that the little chap's manner pleased me,—it was so quick, you see,—and I took him along with us. This was Knight, sir,—him as afterwards went with Cottle. Well, he picked up no end of general information, learned to play the banjo when his little thumb wa'n't no bigger than a bean, sir; and the way he did catch the popular melodies up, sir, it really was surprising. Well, sir, he run on errands for us, and made himself really quite useful until one day, when I was a sitting and meditating in the shade,—we was at Plaquemine then, which is about as rough a place as there is on the river, sir,—I says to myself, 'Look here, Buster,' I says to myself,—Buster not being my real name, which is Briggs, but a nick-name, which I often use in conversing with myself,—'Look here, Buster,' I says, 'double clog dancing is just a springing up, ain't it?' Then I answer myself affirmative. 'Of course it is,' says I. 'Then, Buster,' I says, 'if you was to pick up some other little chap like that Knight there, and train him and Knight to dance together in course of time, they might come to do something really worth calling fine art.' And I slapped my knee, and I rose up, and said I, 'I'll do it.' Well, I called Tom, and I told him my plan, and Tom took to it wonderfully, and I directed him to hunt up his own mate, so that he might be sure of getting some one congenial. Congeniality is a great thing, sir, whether in business partnerships or matrimony. So about a week after,—we was in Cairo, Ill., then, which was the worst place on the river, sir,—in come Tom with a little fellow who was, without exception, the dirtiest and raggedest and hungriest-looking little pill I ever see. And yet, sir, that chap was Cottle. So I says to Tom, 'Who's this?'

"'It's my mate,' says Tom, very determined like.

"So, seeing his heart was set on having Cottle, I had him cleaned up, and begun to train 'em both. Well, both Tom Knight and Charley Cottle, they took to their work loving. They was born dancers, sir, both of 'em, but they never would have been what they was without the education and polish they got from me. I had 'em in training over a year before I brought 'em before the public, partly to improve 'em as much as possible, and partly because they was both very young, and I didn't wish to have them injured by the incensing of flattery.

"Well, finally, one night, I brought 'em on the stage at Vicksburg, which is as ugly a place as there is on the river, sir,—and they achieved an unparalleled success. I don't think I shall ever forget the burst of applause when them two little pills stepped on the stage with their little red and white suits, and begun their clog together. The house it kept a encoring and encoring, till I was forced for to go on and beg them off, and then we took up from the stage, when they was through, more than fifty dollars in various denominations of coin, two bowie-knives, and a lot of faro chips, sir, which was flattering.

"Well, sir, the years passed on and the boys grew up. Nothing keeps as it is, sir, but it either improves or it goes down, and them boys did not go down. It was a treat to see 'em dance, sir. They kind of glided into one another's footsteps till it seemed as though you was seeing two copies of one man before you. Then they looked alike too, sir. They didn't at first, but being together constant so sort of ameliorated them together. It's curious, sir, but Knight's hair, which was almost straight at first, took to curling, like Charley's. Partly this may have been due to the brushing, but partly it was owing to the association. Well, as they went on they began to do double songs mixed into their dances, which is now very common, but they was about the first ones at it, sir. You may have heard 'em in 'Courting 'neath the Moon,' perhaps, sir. Knight would come dancing in and sing—

'Why am I always singing
I'm such a happy co[illegible]n
My love I'm always bringing
To court beneath the moon
My heart is just now swelling—'

Then he gave two or three steps to the right.

'Since I expect her [illegible]—'

Then the same to the left, you see, sir.

'Sweet [illegible] to her I'm telling
When courting neath the moon.'

Then Cottle would come in [illegible] and dance the interlude together, then Cottle would have his verse, and then they'd have a verse together as a duet, winding up with

'And when we both are married
We'll court beneath the moon.'

If you never saw it, sir, it don't sound like much, perhaps, but if you was to see 'em with every step they took, coming in, click, click, in just such time, you see, and the one a flashing out the other's ideas in steps, you'd have acknowledged, sir, that it was just sublime, and that's the only word for it.

"Well, sir, after a time they left me and went away through the West and East, and [illegible] I [illegible] place in New Orleans, where I did well [illegible] running the shortness of the season and the general tone [illegible] of the place, which is about as bad as all the other places on the river put together. Well, one day I found I'd laid up about enough to retire on, and I [illegible] Mrs Briggs, the proprietress, [illegible] North to locate, which took [illegible] and so we went. Well, I'd just [illegible] when some [illegible] word that Knight and Cottle had separated. It made me uneasy, though I couldn't believe it at all, so I went to New York to see them. I saw them [illegible] trying [illegible] the other, instead of [illegible] having, like a unit as in days gone by. Well, I went round behind to see 'em after the performance, and I says to them, 'Boys,' I says, 'there's something wrong between you, and if you don't look out, your prospects will be ruined. You're a pair of scissors together, you [illegible].' Well, they laughed and said it was all imagination, but at that theatrical moment, just as if it had been in a play, a woman went by, and I knew what the matter was. It was the old story, as the remark did for [illegible], and I was not alluding to drink, but to love, which I considers much worse.

"The woman's stage name was Bertha Middleton, and all I know is that her father's name was Cooney, and a miserabler old beast late at night you never did see. He kept sober until his daughter had finished her songs, so as to go in and [illegible] the applause, and then he'd walk away to his beer when he'd see that here [illegible] was all right. He was a low pill, that's what he was, and she took after him. I dare say I was prejudiced, but then the moment I saw her I knew she was the cause of mischief to my boys, and I felt that if she should go on interfering with their artistic prospects I would not get over it in one while. She was the [illegible] at [illegible] Broadway, where Knight and Cottle was then engaged. Negro minstrelsy was a wavering in its hold on the public, and so, among others, was taking to the variety business. They had a very good company, where Knight and Cottle was. There was a few pantomimists, and a small ballet, and this here Middleton girl, as she called herself, and three or four others who was miscellaneous. A trapeze performer, so Bob Coggins, the manager, told me, was not [illegible]. Well, I [illegible] that establishment [illegible]. Me and Coggins was old friends, and he wanted me to open there, but I says, 'No, Bob Coggins,' I says, 'I have retired from the arena, and have done with them things forever.' But I hung round there, to keep an eye on to Knight and Cottle's proceedings. Well, sir, that girl was as sharp as an axe, she was. She led Knight on and she led Cottle on, as far as taking of presents from them was concerned, but her general behavior, sir, may be described as guarded. She never let neither of them come to the main question, sir, but she kept a playing with their hearts and a bleeding of their pockets, as days rolled on.

"After I'd been in New York about a fortnight the trapeze performer arrived. He was down on the bills as 'Signor Lrio, the Aerovalant, who will indulge in the exhilarating pastimes of his native clime on a trapeze suspended from the dome of the theater,' but his real name was Hobbs, and if ever there was a low lived little English cockney, that 'Obbs, as he called himself with a gross ignorance of pronunciation, was one. But he was quite handsome, sir, in a flashy sort of way when arrayed for the trapeze in salmon and blue fleshings. He was a dreadful coward, and if it hadn't have been for his mother, who was a very energetic woman, he wouldn't never have done nothing. I remember one morning he was a rehearsing on his trapeze. He hung from the end of a rope by his hands, desiring for to jump so as to fling himself over his trapeze, catching it with one foot head downward. It was a mighty risky thing to do, sir, and Hobbs he swung back and fourth holding on to his rope, and looked doubtful. Mrs Hobbs she was sitting in the parquette under him, and says she, 'What's the matter, John Enry?'

"'This is an ugly look out, ma,' says Hobbs from above, 'and I'm doubtful about it.'

"Then Mrs Hobbs she rose from her seat, pretty majestic, I can tell you, sir.

"'Look 'ere, John Enry Obbs!' says she, dropping her aspirates awful, 'if you flings your 'eart over that there trapeze your legs they will follow.' And Hobbs tried again and did it, sir.

"Well, one Monday we were all in the green room, sir, in the morning, and Mrs Hobbs she spoke up,—

"'I suppose I'm to congratulate you, Miss Middleton,' says she, 'and Mr Knight or Mr Cottle likewise,—but which I cannot say.'

"'What do you mean by that?' says Miss Middleton.

"'Well, I see you out walking on one of them's arm last evening,' says Mrs Hobbs. 'Which it was I cannot tell, they looks so much alike, and it was dusky about that time, but in Hengland,' says she, in her beastly cockney way, 'such things mean something.'

"Well, I looked at Knight, and I looked at Cottle, to see if I could make out which it was, and Knight looked kind of pleased and ashamed, and Cottle looked so likewise. And then I saw how it was, and I slapped my knee, and I says to myself, 'Buster,' I says to myself, 'she was out a walking with both of 'em last night.'

"Well, about an hour after in comes Knight and in comes Charley Cottle, both of them quite excited.

"'See here, Joe,' says Knight, 'we think we had better take you into our confidence.'

"'I should say so,' says I, ironically.

"'Well, Joe,' says Knight, 'as ill luck would have it, we've both fell in love with the same girl.'

"'And that girl's name,' says I, 'is Cooney, otherwise Middleton.'

"'Well,' says Cottle, 'you always did keep your weather-eye open, and that's a fact, Joe. Now, we don't want to quarrel, and so we've come to ask your advice.'

"'My advice,' says I, 'is two-fold. First, that both of you give her up, which advice I suppose you won't follow.'

"'Which advice,' repeated Tom Knight, 'we certainly shall not follow.'

"'Then,' says I, 'since one of you must give her up, let him take her whom she seems to like most.'

"'That's me,' says Knight, and 'That's me,' says Cottle, almost simultaneous.

"'Here,' says I, 'arises a difficulty.'

"'Well,' says Knight, 'you heard what Mrs Hobbs said, didn't you?'

"'I did,' says I.

"'Well, I was the fellow that was walking with her,' says Knight, quite triumphant.

"'You lie,' says Charley Cottle, first a turning red and then a turning white.

"At that Knight raised his hand for to strike him, but I caught hold of him, and before he could say a word Cottle broke in.

"'Forgive me,' says he, 'but my temper got the better of me. It's the first word that has ever passed between us, and I can never forgive myself that it came from me. But, as sure as I'm alive, that girl was out walking with me last night.'

"'Look here, fellows,' says I, 'you mark my words, that girl is going back on one of you. You'd better find out which it is to-night, and so have the affair settled.'

"Well, they finally agreed that this would be the best way, and so they left me. Of course I went to the theater that night because I was anxious about them, but things kept a happening and happening to detain me, and I never got there till full 10 o'clock, and as I went in I met Coggins coming out, and I saw at once that he was put out about something.

"'What is the matter, Coggins?' said I.

"'The matter is,' said he, 'that the devil has broken loose here to-night. There has been an elopement and an accident, and I know no more what to do than I know how to fly.'

"Seeing it wasn't advisable to say no more to Coggins just then, I went behind the scenes, and there I saw Knight.

"'Well, Joe,' said he, 'you told us this morning she was going back on one of us, and you was partially right.'

"'How, partially,' says I. 'How partially?'

"'Because, Joe,' says he, 'she's gone back on both. She's run off with that Hobbs.'

"At first I felt like laughing, for I knew what a roaring, mad old Mrs Hobbs would be, but when I [illegible] at Tom Knight's face I saw it was a serious thing.

"'That isn't the worst, Joe,' says he. 'You see, Charley heard of the news before I did, and came to the theater, and he was afraid it would be pretty rough on me. He thought more of me than of himself, Joe, when it came to that, and so he rushed through the crowd and ran down the stairs there, which are very rickety, and he stumbled over some rubbish, fell his length, and broke his leg in two places.'

"Well, sir, you might have knocked me down with a feather when I heard that. I just sat down to take breath.

"'That isn't all, Joe,' says Tom. 'Coggins come to me and says that he was a ruined man without no [illegible] trapeze performer [illegible] double song and dance [illegible] couldn't [illegible] alone for a single dance. I told him it wasn't no use, I couldn't do nothing alone, but he teased and teased, until he seemed in such a trouble that finally I gave in. Well, they applauded me, and I started all right, but I hadn't done two steps when I begun to miss Charley, and I grew confused and forgot my steps, and Joe, Joe, they hissed me off.'

"And Tommy Knight, sir, he just laid his head on my shoulder and he cried, cried like an infant, and I tell you, sir, I shouldn't have minded crying too. Well, the long and the short of it was that Cottle he lay sick for two months with fever brought on by the pain and the excitement together, and Tom Knight he stuck by him until they could move him up to my farm, where they both finally [illegible] and remained with me and Mrs Briggs; and a more [illegible] hollow-eyed looking chap than Charley Cottle was then you never saw. It made me think of the day in Cairo, when Tom Knight first brought him to me, and said as how he wanted him for a mate.

"One day in August we was all a sitting around on the stoop at my place, and Tom was a reading in the evening paper, and all suddenly he [illegible] and then stops.

"'What's the matter?' says Charley Cottle. 'How [illegible] looking better than I [illegible].'

"'Nothing's the matter,' says Tom, apparently going to be [illegible] of the paper very hard.

"'Tom,' says Charley, rising to his feet so suddenly that it quite took Mrs Briggs's breath away, '[illegible] about her. Don't deceive me, Tom Knight, and don't treat me like a baby. Let's spit it out.'

"'Well,' says Tom slowly, 'Hobbs [illegible] off his trapeze and broke his neck, and she's done and destitute, and they're going to get her a benefit in Montreal on Friday.'

"'Tom,' said Charley, 'we'll go on and dance for that benefit.'

"'Charley Cottle,' says I, 'you're crazy.'

"'No, I'm not, Joe,' says he, 'I'm in deadly earnest. The more I stays here the more I get to brooding, and brooding. I must do something to rouse me.'

"'But this woman,' says I, 'is the cause of all your troubles, and if you're wise you'll keep away from her.'

"'Don't be afraid,' says he, 'there won't nothing never come between me and Tom again this side the grave. If he wants her I'll never stand in his way. But I requires something to rouse me, and she's treated us badly, and now she's alone and destitute, and we can help her. Tom, I feel as though if I couldn't go on, and let her see that we didn't bear her no malice, I should die. Will you go, Tom? Oh say will you go?' and he clasped them bony hands of his together until it seemed as though the blood would come.

"'Yes, I will,' says Tom Knight. 'It's a bad thing for you, but it may be worse if you has to stay here with this longing on you. We'll start in the evening train to-morrow.'

"The next day Charley seemed just as fresh and gay as ever, and I began to feel that this might be a good thing, but Mrs Briggs was very bitter against it. I didn't go on with them, but we read in the paper that they danced splendid and their success was something astonishing. We had a dispatch from Knight saying they was all right, both of 'em, in body, mind and heart. Heart being underlined to ease the fears and forebodings of Mrs Briggs. We expected them home Saturday, sir, but they never come. That night another despatch from Knight arrived, just saying, 'Come to the Junction at once. Cottle is dangerously ill.'

"It seems that a reaction just took him after his excitement, sir, and then he was as wild to get back to me and Mrs Briggs as he was to get away. He was too sick in the cars, and, when they got to the Junction, back here, Knight didn't dare take him no further, he was so weak. He didn't say much when he saw me, but he kind of smiled, a weary sort of smile, sir, and looked kind of satisfied like. I felt worse about Knight than about Cottle, for Cottle seemed to be all settled and quiet. Well, he lay sinking gradually for about two days, with railroad trains a coming and going on all four sides of the hotel, and when I was a complaining on his account of the noise one evening, he said—

"'I like the noise, Joe,' he says, 'for it's like my life—a coming and going, a coming and going, and never staying. And Tom and Joe, I wants you to promise me, if I die here, as most likely I shall, that you'll bury me here, where nobody knows me, and where so many comes and goes and never stays.'

"Well, Tom thought he was growing sort of light headed, but he promised him, and Charley turned over and went to sleep. He never come out of that sleep, sir, and them words was the last he spoke. The next look we took at him he was dead, sir, and I'm free to confess, sir, that I cried like a whale, but Tom, he seemed kind of stunned.

"We had him buried quietly as he had said, and then I went home. Tom couldn't [illegible] to leave the place. I wrote to him and I talked to him, and Mrs Briggs she wrote to him, and she talked to him, but it wasn't no use.

"'I never had nothing in the world but Charley,' said he, 'and dead or alive I shall stick to him until my time comes too.'

"Well, his time did come, sir, as you can see by that paper. He stopped there at the Junction, never talked to nobody, never read the newspapers, but just ate what they set before him, and walked around, sort of moping. He went regular to Charley Cottle's grave, but never stayed there any time at all, just looking at it as if to make sure it was still there, and then [illegible] away again. He [illegible] to be waiting for something, and [illegible] at the Junction [illegible] wait for the trains [illegible] as singular. He sort of dropped off about four months after he lost Charley, and was buried beside him up there."

[illegible] the fat man [illegible] as this is much of a story, but I thought it was [illegible] curious how them chaps grew [illegible] each other so to speak, and seeing that in your paper brought up old times so that I couldn't help speaking about it. Well, sir, here we are at Concord, and I must leave you. Good day, sir."

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES.

Dr Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNEY STREET NEAR COMMERCIAL

San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases

How many thousands of persons both male and female are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences or from virus absorbed into the system. Look at the sallid [illegible] the and disfigured faces [illegible] broken down constitutions disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation they linger on until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequently insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of his complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Dr Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells Fargo & Co.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen, and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. Look over the San Francisco Directory, and you will not find their Medical Institutes in it, but you will find their former occupations in it. Look at the Directory for 1862 and 1863. The only way to avoid imposition is to make enquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets, for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.

Address DR J F GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, (Private Entrance on Commercial) San Francisco. Post Office Box 252.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 252 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

☞ Correspondents will please inform DR GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian.

THE RIVERSIDE

HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

EAST PORTLAND, OREGON,

IS NOW PREPARED TO RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS to their Stock.

Application for ONE HUNDRED SHARES [illegible] before the books were opened, and a large [illegible] Shares have been taken.

The following extracts from the [illegible] will convey a good idea of the plan [illegible] the Association, the location of the land, etc.

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD A[illegible]

This association, of whose organization [illegible] an account a few days since, is now [illegible] purpose of shares. As it is with [illegible] Portland Homestead Association [illegible] organization of that kind in this city [illegible] well enough to state what are its [illegible] the manner in which it is [illegible] operations. The purposes of [illegible] Associations are not at all speculative in the ordinary sense of the word. They are [illegible] for the profits of their investment [illegible] general advance in the value of their lands [illegible] consequent upon the co-operation of many [illegible] shareholders—and the advance on values of surrounding lands by reason of the [illegible] population and demand for room [illegible] still near the city. The Riverside [illegible] Association has a fraction over one hundred [illegible] twenty acres of land situated just [illegible] Brooklyn on the east side of the river, [illegible] east boundary line being about [illegible] ferry landing at East Portland. The tract lies in one strip along the Willamette river, half a mile in length, and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad, half a mile in length, the two strips being connected near the [illegible] rows of blocks (with a street [illegible]), the whole forming a figure not unlike [illegible] It is divided into 74 blocks, [illegible] streets running at right angles, and [illegible] all lots along the river front. The [illegible] number 600, worth $80 per share. [illegible] a share thus represents nearly a [illegible] divided interest in the 86 fractional [illegible] tional shares are to be sold off at the [illegible] for the benefit of the Association [illegible] coming in for the proceeds in [illegible] number of shares held. When all shares [illegible] taken and the Association [illegible] mine to do it, the choice of [illegible] will be put up at auction [illegible] bidder, the proceeds of such sales [illegible] the original price of shares [illegible] equally among the whole [illegible]. Thus if a person wants [illegible] and is willing to pay $100 [illegible] or less as the case may be [illegible] the lot or block as his individual [illegible] premium being divided [illegible] of shareholders. It will be [illegible] everything is co-operative, and [illegible] No man can make a dollar [illegible] out also making a dollar for every [illegible] shareholder. There is no chance for loss [illegible] the property by some [illegible] far below the first cost [illegible] liable to happen in the case of [illegible] tract of land must be judged by [illegible] but considering the steady and [illegible] advance on real estate in this city [illegible] hood and at East Portland [illegible] last year or two, it [illegible] values to go back.

In the Riverside Association all [illegible] tions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares. No [illegible] buy more than the number of shares [illegible] three blocks or twenty four lots, and [illegible] terminating the operations of the [illegible] restricted in the same [illegible] shares may pay down $60 per share [illegible] exempt them from all assessments [illegible] pay $15 quarterly with [illegible] share payable with the first [illegible] liable in this latter case to an [illegible] other) assessment of $5 per share. [illegible] payment of the shares in full, [illegible] as above, the holder is entitled to his [illegible] and his proportion of all the [illegible] all sources. No officer of the [illegible] any pay for services [illegible] gets $25 per month, so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

That part of the tract lying along the [illegible] a high plateau, nearly level, about [illegible] above the water. There is no part of the [illegible] row of blocks but commands a [illegible] Portland and the river for miles up and down stream. That part of the tract lying along the railroad is, every foot of it, of the [illegible] soil and adapted to gardening [illegible] tiful little stream of pure water [illegible] almost the entire length of this [illegible] affording the means of irrigation, and [illegible] ficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract. There is not a waste [illegible] lot in the entire tract. Under all these advantages it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders. Within a year each shareholder [illegible] perfect title to as many lots as he [illegible] represent, or he may continue [illegible] vided with the Association while the [illegible] tion may exist.—Oregon[illegible]

THE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD [illegible]

We have been led to make these [illegible] the subject of making [illegible] in this city and East Portland, [illegible] is used [illegible] among all classes and [illegible] Riverside, just south of East Portland [illegible] been established. The site selected is a tract of land [illegible] a little [illegible] a mile south of the ferry [illegible] shaped like the letter H, one side of which [illegible] in length borders on the river [illegible] [illegible] but a trifle above the other prong of the H, but is yet fifty [illegible] feet above the river [illegible] a view of Portland, East Portland, the [illegible] the Willamette river for several miles. The land is very fertile, and is partly covered with [illegible] tract of land just wide enough for [illegible] with an avenue between them, connects the [illegible] of the H [illegible] has already been described [illegible] The last tract of land [illegible] valley which is now under a high state of [illegible] Through its whole length runs a trout brook, the water [illegible] as clear as crystal. With a hydraulic ram [illegible] have water conveyed through [illegible] of the homestead.—Daily Bulletin
